

University Mariano Galvez

Pedagogy and Andragogy

Lic. Maria Elena Alvarez

Video analysis & Mind Map

Josué David

Rivas Velásquez

Carnet: 076-15-19312

Date: April. 08 /2015

Introduction

Adults learners can be defined either based on age, cognitive maturity or a nontraditional learner. However, there comes the problem of motivating adult learners. There are a few things that stand in the way to motivating adults to start learning.

But teachers have to find different ways to motivate and make feel the students good, for example a simple word like “Very Good” “Your work is excellent” or “Amazing work” makes feel our student good.

Remember that teachers are models and guides so we have to be always motivate.

The psychology of self-motivation

Video Analysis

We as teachers can inspire learners, parents or persons to learn making more than we have to do, that means that we can do some things that maybe aren't going to be paid but we will receive self-gratification and inspire other persons. For example help learner who has problems or maybe just listening the problems of them, Students doesn't tell us that they have to help us but we can do it.

Teachers can m feel empower with this 3 questions:

1. Can you do it?
2. Will we work?
3. Word fits.

If our answers are yes we are competent and we will make our work motivate. We have to inspire people to feel competent and we will be the example of that.

We have to know how communicate to others and with our self because one word can motivate our students but if we don't express good that word can make feel bad to this student.

Think the consequences of our word and actions is important because we can say or made something that isn't like students and we always have to remember that we are a guide and a model of correct person.

Motivation is in the mind and help us to make our goals real.

Adults has their own motivation to learn.

Adult learners are the students that goes to university , sometimes they have a job.

Motivating adults learners

Adults accept the responsibility of learning but we can motivate them to continue learning.

As teachers we can share learning experiences to motivate our students.

Conclusions

- ✓ We can always learn to each other because we need each other's.
- ✓ Teachers have to inspire learners.
- ✓ Help our students is very gratifying to our self, remember that we have to help our neighbor.
- ✓ Motivation of adult learners is important because we help them to follow their goals.
- ✓ Adults have other responsibilities like work or family but they are very responsible when they have to learn.

Bibliography

- ✓ The psychology of self-motivation- Scott Geller – TEDx- Virginia Tech Video.
- ✓ Video Motivating adult learners.